

Seth Almaliah, CFA

Senior Vice President, Head of Client Service
Segal Marco Advisors
New York, New York

Seth Almaliah is a senior vice president in Segal Marco Advisors' New York office with over 20 years of investment consulting experience with defined benefit and defined contribution plans in the multiemployer and public fund markets. His responsibilities include assisting clients in the development of investment policy and asset allocation strategy, the selection of investment managers and custodians, and the evaluation of investment performance. Seth also has experience conducting investment manager due diligence and performing asset liability modeling. In addition, he consults to high-profile defined benefit, defined contribution, and health and welfare plan sponsors. Seth is also head of client service for Segal Marco. In this role, Seth has management oversight of our primary practice areas and service deliverables for our advisory and discretionary clients. This includes investment manager research, risk management and performance measurement. He also leads the Segal Marco New York region. Prior to joining Segal Marco Advisors, Seth worked at CIBC Oppenheimer, where he processed and reconciled trades for listed stocks and municipal bonds in the purchase and sales department. Seth graduated from Hofstra University with a B.S. degree in industrial engineering. He earned his Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) designation in 2003. Seth has provided insight and commentary to industry publications, including Institutional Investor. He speaks regularly at the Institutional Forum on various investment-related topics. He has also spoken at the International Foundation of Employee Benefits Investments Institute.
