Chief Human Resources Officer
Epic Staffing Group
Tampa, Florida

Isabel Dominicis Dewey is a senior HR executive with a track record of transforming people operations across global, high-growth organizations. As chief human resources officer at Epic Staffing Group, she leads talent strategy for a diversified health care and life sciences workforce, driving major initiatives including the integration of two locum tenens acquisitions, a full HR restructuring with 70% cost containment, overhaul of employee benefits, implementation of unified job architecture and compensation structures, and launching a global learning and development function. She also transitioned the organization to a self-funded benefits model and introduced engagement and performance dashboards that improved organizational visibility and decision-making. Previously, Isabel served as SVP of people at ReliaQuest, where she scaled the cybersecurity company from 350 to over 1,000 employees across the United States, Europe, and India, while doubling engineering and go-to-market teams and launching global compensation, training, and internship programs. Earlier, she spent nearly two decades with IBM in global reskilling, education, and workforce capability leadership roles. She holds a master of public policy degree from the University of Chicago and remains deeply engaged in civic and board leadership in Tampa, Florida.
